Céide Fields

Beneath the wild boglands of North Mayo lies the Céide Fields, the most extensive Stone Age monument in the world, consisting of field systems, dwelling areas and megalithic tombs. The stone walled fields, extending over thousands of acres are almost 6,000 years old, the oldest known in the world. They are covered by a natural blanket bog with its own unique vegetation and wildlife. It is located beside some of the most spectacular cliffs and rock formations in Ireland and a viewing platform is positioned on the edge of the 110m high cliff. Visitors are advised to wear weather protective clothing and footwear suitable for walking on uneven terrain.

Monasteries of the Moy Greenway

The Monasteries of the Moy Greenway links three historical sites between Ballina and Killala. The route stretches roughly 12.5km and is ideal for cyclers and walkers. Enjoy the unrivalled peace and tranquillity at each of the three monastic sites, while taking in beautiful scenic views. This fascinating trail of monastic ruins includes the Augustinian Abbey in the centre of Ballina which dates from 1427. Rosserk Abbey, built for the 3rd Order of the Franciscans in 1440, is preserved to the extent that it still has the feel of ancient hospitality, while majestic Moyne Abbey has the marking of ships carved into its wall from when it was a centre of learning for scholars from home and abroad.

Hennigan's Heritage Centre

Hennigan's Heritage Centre showcases Mayo's rural past with a series of engaging exhibits of how families lived and worked in days gone by. Located in acres of unspoiled countryside, at the heart of the centre is a thatched cottage built in the 1870s, where the Hennigan family lived until 1970. Here, tourists can experience first-hand how ordinary families survived on less than 10 acres of poor land for almost 200 years.

Tours are available and they last around an hour, followed by complementary tea and homemade scones. All tours are guided by the owner, Tom, so booking is essential.

National Museum of Ireland Country Life

The award-winning Museum of Country Life, located at Turlough House, Castlebar (pictured right), is home to the National Folklife Collection. On display in state-of-the-art galleries are the everyday objects that were part of the culture of traditional life in Ireland in the period between the end of the Great Famine and the mid-20th century. Find out how ordinary people lived their daily lives through the objects they left behind. Follow their lives through the rhythm of the seasons - at work and at home, from life on the land to life at sea, in craft and in clothing, in religion and belief. From the complete horse-harness made of straw to the raft made of rushes, from clothing to the hearth, fascinating objects bring us up close to the lives of our ancestors.

Kiltimagh Railway Museum

The very building which houses the collection can be classed as an artefact, as in the past, the flow of goods and people through the station was the fulcrum of the economic and social identity of the area. Two restored antiquated railway carriages are now in situ on the old tracks and can be boarded as part of the museum experience much to the delight of children. The museums artefacts depicting aspects of urban and rural lifestyles, now mostly consigned to memory, are also captured in an interesting range of photographs illuminating moments in the area's past. Some features stand out visually. Foremost among these is a beautifully restored pony trap from the early 20th century and a banner that was created amidst the fervour of the land struggle of the 1870's. This banner was carried by Kiltimagh people to the 1879 meetings in Irishtown and Westport, out of which the Land League was born.

Clogher Heritage Complex

The Clogher Heritage Centre consists of a restored 19th Century thatched cottage & blacksmith's forge. The Cottage is a typical one bedroomed thatched labourer's cottage, which includes a Cailleach or Hag (a bed built into alcove) and loft. There is a Cottage Garden with a display of vintage farm machinery, a water feature and a picnic area. The Heritage Complex is also the Trailhead for the Clogher Bog Walk, a Nationally Acclaimed Loop walk of 8km. The walk takes in some Fen, blanket bog and hedgerows which are home to a wide variety of flora and fauna. The biodiversity of these habitats host many common and rare protected species. There are many archaeological features worth viewing on the walk and in the locality. A visit to Clogher Heritage Centre includes some stories from the local history & folklore.

Knock Museum

Knock Museum captures the unique and compelling story of the Knock Apparition of 1879 and tells of the fifteen ordinary people who witnessed this extraordinary event. Visitors can read original hand-written letters by people cured at Knock and listen to pilgrims sharing stories and memories of Knock. The Apparition is also set in the context of life at that time, from living in the thatched house to working in the forge. At Knock Museum, visitors can read through the amazing stories of ordinary pilgrims in the 'Diary of Cures', a collection of original letters written to Archdeacon Cavanagh from 1879-1880. Visitors are invited to step back in time to 1879, the year of the Apparition and explore life at this time.

South Mayo Family Research Centre

Emigration has generated a Mayo Diaspora which has resulted in millions of people world-wide who can trace their ancestry back to County Mayo. In recent years there have been an increasing number of people eager to discover more about their Mayo Roots. To facilitate the amount of ancestral enquiries and to ensure the highest possible standard of service, capturing vital local knowledge, the South Mayo Family Heritage Centre was founded by the Irish Genealogical Project to provide the official family history research facility for South Mayo. The centre is among the busiest of the Irish Family History Foundation's network of centres, because of the high volume of emigration from South Mayo since the time of the Great Famine and the resultant high volume of enquiries. The centre has computerised over one million records.

Westport House, Westport

Westport House is undoubtedly one of Ireland's best loved heritage attractions – and is rightly called the most beautiful house in Ireland. With over 30 rooms on show, visitors can immerse themselves in life as far back as the 16th century when Grace O'Malley the Pirate Queen of Connacht ruled the land and seas around the estate. Built upon the foundations of one of her many castles which can still be toured in the dungeons today, the original Westport House was built in 1650 by Colonel John Browne and his wife Maud Burke, Grace O'Malley's great-great-granddaughter.

Other Places of Interest

Spirit of Place Trail

Procession of the Souls, Swinford Procession of the Souls commemorates Swinford's Great Famine history and recognises the unsung heroes of that period. The installation, located at the entrance of the Paupers' Graveyard in Swinford, is a processional, exemplifying the struggle through a tragic and turbulent passage, emerging to a light-filled structure overlooking the graveyard and the burial site of Dr Henry, a local doctor of the time whose dedication to his patients played a significant role in assisting Swinford and its people overcome the great tragedy of the Famine.

The Tale of the Tongs The Gathering, Inishturk

The home fires are always burning on the island outpost of Inishturk and now a sculpture titled, 'The Tale of the Tongs', commemorating the past and present culture and community of the island. Part of The Gathering Ireland 2013, the 'Spirit of Place' evokes the centuries of cultural gatherings on this spectacular island, which is renowned for its warm welcome and great sessions of music. The eight-foot high sculpture, - visible from many vantage points en route to the island, - encapsulates the sense of welcome from the home-fires set in this unspoiled landscape. The island's six family names are highlighted on the sculpture, - Heanue, Heaney, O'Toole, Concannon, Faherty and Prendergast.

The Crossing Downpatrick Head

The Crossing, is a quiet restoration project with a thunderous architectural and landscape installation to commemorate the natural power and richly-layered historical tales of this site. The metaphor of The Crossing evokes the struggle and the sublime slipstream between the mystical and the material, the "crossing", between cultural history and the eternal sacred; contradiction and paradox at its best. It is the border where folklore and spoken tradition reflect on the lion's den of lives past and lives to come. It is the unspeakable moment when two totally divergent realities collide - the despair of losses at last transcends into the celebration of joy over what has become of the Irish Heritage over the past fifteen hundred years: a culture that in its hidden hours saved the history of humanity when the dark ages swept the globe...the diaspora of the famine that ironically spread this uniquely Irish character further.
